Stéphane Bern and Arianne Alcorta will be the masters of the 26th Grand Prix d'Horlogerie de Genève (GPHG) awards ceremony, which will take place on Saturday, 7 November at 7 p.m. at the Bâtiment des Forces Motrices in Geneva.

Join us from 6:30 p.m. on the official GPHG website to experience the atmosphere of the red carpet. The ceremony will begin promptly at 7 p.m. and will also be broadcast on the official YouTube and Facebook pages.

Euronews will broadcast the event live on its website in several languages, while Hantang Culture will share this must-see watchmaking event across its numerous Chinese-language channels. Léman Bleu will broadcast the ceremony at a later date, on Saturday, 14 November 2026 at 8:30 p.m.

The 84 timepieces nominated by the GPHG Academy, competing to win one of the twenty prizes – including the prestigious Aiguille d'Or – are on display until Sunday, 15 November at the Musée d'Art et d'Histoire in Geneva. Finally, the winning timepieces will be presented in London from 18 to 23 November.
